Private equity valuation: Trends and constraints

Introduction

The Private Equity industry is facing a lot of challenges with the financial crises and regulatory changes. With investors paying more attention to their investment values and regulators increase their scrutiny, valuation continues to pose challenges for private equity companies. Particularly, the need for a dedicated valuation function has emerged over the last few years and is a requirement of the AIFMD which mandates a 'proper and independent' valuation of the fund's portfolio.

This seminar will explore challenges that the industry is facing and provide tips to assist management seeking to arrive at robust valuations to satisfy both investors and regulators' requirements".
